1	A few hundred years ago only people on the British	✓
2	Isles spoke English. After the Age of the Exploration	The
3	English ships sailed over to faraway parts of the world
4	and have founded colonies on all continents. English
5	became the mother tongue in the United States,
6	Australia and New Zealand
7	In many other countries this English was spoken in
8	schools, in government and trade products. Today,
9	it is still used for as a second language in India,
10	Pakistan and other countries.
11	In the course of time, while many different dialects
12	of the English mother language developed. British
13	and American English, for example, differ do not
14	only in pronunciation, but also in such vocabulary and grammar.
15	There are even many reasons why English is widely
16	used around the world. It has become the dominant
17	language in science and then the main language of
18	international communication and the Internet.
19	This is why English language has become the most
20	important foreign language in child education in
21	many countries.
